

When sensor and gateway are at different elevations then for optimal wireless range the imaginary line should be at right angle to the antennas. That is because antennas radiate peak power in a donut shape with the antenna at the center of the donut hole. The goal is to overlap the two antennas' donuts.

